On the cover: Several of the attendees of the women's retreat took a sunset hay ride through Camp Capers.

Dear Brothers and Sisters in Christ,

By the time this edition of the Rock Road is published, we will be less than two weeks away from Holy Week and eagerly anticipating our celebration of Easter. This year, we get to hear Luke's version of the Easter story. And, in Luke's account, when the women first tell the disciples about the empty tomb, the women's testimony seemed to the disciples an idle tale. In other words, when the disciples first heard about the empty tomb, the news seemed too good to be true!

You and I can get bogged down by so many things in this world that seem contrary to the message we hear on Easter Day. It's easy to believe in suffering and death. Just read your newsfeed. We can easily relate to the events leading up to Good Friday. The disciples left that day disappointed with their heads hanging low. We can relate. We know loss. We know disappointment. We know the death of a loved one. Perhaps we have been rudely confronted with our own mortality. But then there is Easter.

Granted, there is so much about this world and our life circumstances that would have us disbelieve the women's testimony about an empty tomb. So much of what we see and experience in this world would lead us to agree with the disciples. The Easter story seems like an idle tale. But that is exactly why I love showing up to church on Easter Day.

On Easter morning, I arrive to our church in the dark for the early 6am Easter Vigil. We begin the Easter Vigil in the columbarium, where the dead are buried. We light the Paschal Candle for the first time and make our way into the church, with the light gradually dawning upon us. The message, which might seem like an idle tale in this world, rings true every time I hear it. Alleluia. Christ is risen! You show up to hear the same message. I trust that is why the church sees its highest attendance on Easter Day. It's everything to the Christian faith!

Last month, I presented a book review for the St. Jerome's Guild. I reviewed N.T. Wright's latest book on one of the most famous chapters in the Bible, Romans 8. In the book, Wright explores the themes of assurance, vocation, and glory. But, it's how Wright ends his book that brought me back to the unbelievable, yet remarkable and unwavering Easter proclamation. He tells the story about being in a taxi in London. He was coming from a church meeting, still wearing his clerical collar, when the taxi driver sized him up. The taxi driver asked Wright about one of the contentious debates the church was having. Then the taxi driver put his finger on the ultimate reality. "What I always say," he said, "is this: If God raised Jesus Christ from the dead, then everything else is just rock 'n' roll — isn't it?"

Alleluia. Christ is risen! It is the truth. Happy Easter, and rock 'n' roll, my friends!

Faithfully,

St+

RESURRECTION...?

"I have read that in Lakota tradition the grieving are to be revered, for they are the most awake, the most holy" (Garden & Gun, Feb/March 2025).

"But Mary stood weeping outside the tomb" ... "Jesus said to her, 'Woman, why are you weeping'" (John 20:11,13b).

"If for this life only we have hope in Christ, we are of all people most to be pitied" (I Corinthians 15:19).

I lifted the above opening quote from an article in the noted magazine to which I subscribe. There's always a canine story in each issue under the byline Good Dog. It's the first thing I read, though knowing that it will take me a good while to recover from my inevitable tear-jerker reaction...(Who said men don't cry?). Spoiler Alert: If you're a dog-lover and can find this piece, have a box of Kleenex tissues at the ready!

I've never in my life loved a dog as much as I love the one I serve now, Sparky. He's 10 years old, and every little limp or slightest halt in his gait causes me extreme anxiety. If he sleeps too long, I wake him up to see if he's alive and not, well, you know... If I let myself (and I do, often), I can project all the way to The End, when, ultimately, we (Sparky and I) are parted by death. Yes, Robin's in on this, too, perhaps worse! God forbid a divorce! I can choke up just writing these words.

Sparky's veterinarian tells us that he is "DRAMATIC", which we understand to mean that WE are the dramatic ones, of course. I mean, we've watched Best in Show a hundred times! Now, in my heart of hearts, I secretly pray that one day I can somehow be reunited with Sparky in the spiritual afterlife we Christians call Heaven. Before you dismiss me as some kind of kook--or heretic!--imagine my surprise and elation to read the issue (37-38) of The Wheel, an Orthodox Christian journal I receive, and the lead article titled "Nonhuman Animals in Orthodox Christianity and Contemporary Culture" by Christina Nellist. Much of the journal is engaged in speculative theology about the possibility of animal immortality, under the theological dogmas of Christ's Incarnation and Resurrection.

Nellist recaps certain early Church Fathers who take a tentative-but-open approach to the idea, an "open theological space for us to include animals within our theological discussions and the engagements of our ecclesial communities." Both the Genesis creation narrative of the animal world which God called forth, blessed and proclaimed "good", and the first verses of St. John's Gospel-- "All things came into being through him (Christ, the preexisting Word-made-flesh), and without him not one thing came into being"--align with St. Paul's insight that all things were created in Christ and in Christ all things hold together. Nellist adds: "Rather than viewing animals as resources and disposable lives, as is too often the case, we ought rather to view them as individual creatures who are loved and protected by God. If we believe the teachings of the Bible, animals are worthy enough in God's eyes to be saved from the Great Flood of Genesis 6-8, and as St. Cyril of Jerusalem reminds us, to be redeemed and saved through Christ's Incarnation and Resurrection, 'And do not wonder that the whole world (cosmos) was ransomed; for it was no mere man, but the only-begotten Son of God, who died on its behalf.'"

Bereaved dog-lover David Joy ends his G&G ode to his beloved canine companion Charles Thomas at his graveside eulogy: "As I told you every day that you were here, no amount of time would have been enough. Not a million years. I've had dogs all my life, good dogs, all of them, and I have loved them all. But you were the one. You were my one, sweet boy."

And, in a segue to his beloved grandmother's funeral: "My sister and I were by the casket, and my sister could not let go of Granny's hand. I tried my best to console her. I told her "She's gone." I said, "That's not her. That's just a body." My sister looked up at me and replied simply and beautifully, "Yes, I know. But I loved it."

Ooohhhhh!!!!...Dear Jesus, sweet Redeemer and Friend, with no disrespect, no drama, just Hope....: "You're a Good Boy. A Good, Good Boy, You are..."

Can you spell God backwards???

A SPOTLIGHT ON RECENT EVENTS

Early Communion Class

From January to March, Jenny Ligon and Father Bert led an Early communion class for six weeks. Students who completed the class will be honored at the Parish Picnic on April 27th.

5th Wednesday Bingo at Pint & Plow

Bingo at our January 5th Wednesday was a hit! With multiple winners, and fun prizes, we had a blast at Pint & Plow playing bingo. Whenever there is a 5th Wednesday in the month, we opt to meet off campus in leu of our regular Wednesday programming. Our next 5th Wednesday will be April 30th on the Trailhead Beergarden and we hope you join us!

Pancake Supper and Ash Wednesday

On Shrove Tuesday we gathered in Tucker Hall to a delicious feast of pancakes, perfectly flipped by the men of St. Peter's. The very next day, Lent began on Ash Wednesday.

Prayers & Pencils

On Sunday March 23, Father Bert did a special blessing of #2 pencils during the 9:15 service. With upcoming standardized testing for many of our students as the school year winds down, we want them to know that their worth is not determined by a test score. We hope the pencils and the prayer card they received serve as a reminder that God is with them always.

The Journey of Jonah

This Lent, dive deep into the transformative journey of Jonah! Discover themes of mercy, forgiveness, and God's unwavering love as we explore this timeless and compelling story.

Our Lenten Series speakers will open up our hearts and minds to the journey of Jonah and invite us to discover how Jonah's experiences resonate with our own lives. Whether you are familiar with the story or new to it, come and grow with us this season of renewal.

MUSIC MEDITATIONS

This year's music meditation will have a slightly different format. At each quarter-hour there will be a piece or set of pieces of a contemplative, but not always quiet, nature, followed by a period of silence for the remainder of that quarter-hour. There will be a guide sheet with the music listed, links to listen to it again later, options for listening/praying, and some scriptural and extra-scriptural resources to guide meditation. Each week will have a common Lenten theme in the music and meditation resources; previous week's guides will remain available for use at a later date.

Updates from the CFC Community of Saints Francis and Clare

So many amazing things have happened for the Community of Saints Francis and Clare (CFC) since the last Rock Road newsletter, I wanted to update you about at least three great things!

First, it was wonderful being with you at St. Peter's for a Sunday in February and getting a chance to preach and share some of the vision behind our new "school for discipleship" for people in their twenties and early thirties. Thank you again for welcoming me and sharing in our enthusiasm for this new ministry! If you didn't get a chance to hear my sermon where I talked about the three pillars of our community: prayer, study, and service, you can watch it at <https://tinyurl.com/2t6nub8j>.

Second, at the invitation of Bishop Read, Father Bert and I presented about the CFC to the Diocese of West Texas Council where clergy and lay delegates from congregations across our diocese got to hear about our plans and watch our new promotional video. If you haven't seen the video yet, you can watch it and read a lot more information on our newly revised website at <https://www.stpeterskerrville.com/cfc> While you are there, please sign up to become a "Friend of Francis and Clare" to start receiving our monthly email newsletter!

Third, we are spreading the word far and wide. We have now opened applications and I even met online with our first inquirer. We started social media accounts on Instagram and Facebook to further spread the word. We are working on a logo and other promotional materials. I have signed up to have a table at a conference this summer where college chaplains will gather from Episcopal, Lutheran, Presbyterian, and UCC campus ministries from across the country. I have also been in conversation with many other people from across the US and England and our list of enthusiastic supporters is already growing. Please help us spread the word to your family and friends as we seek to reach young adults who are looking to do this kind of deeper discipleship work.

The Advisory Council, Father Bert, and I continue to work to both recruit potential participants, plan the ministry, and spread the word to those who might want to support the CFC financially. Thank you for your help spreading the word as well. I continue to look forward to moving to Kerrville in June and getting to know each of you!

Christ's peace,

Council 2025

The 121st Council of the Diocese of West Texas gathered clergy, lay leaders, and delegates in San Marcos for worship, fellowship, and important diocesan business. Over the course of the event, attendees heard reports from various ministries, elected new diocesan leaders, and discussed the future of the church.

A key moment of Council was the Bishop's Address, where the Rt. Rev. David G. Read reflected on his first year as Bishop Diocesan and shared his vision for the future.

BISHOP'S ADDRESS

Bishop Read's address evoked emotion and applause as he spoke about his past year as Bishop of the Diocese of West Texas and his vision for the future. He provided background on why "Here Am I. Send Me." was chosen as the Council 2025 theme, stating "I chose this theme because of particular challenges the Diocese of West Texas is facing in these days. Nationwide, The Episcopal Church is beginning to experience a very real shortage of clergy." Additionally, volunteerism is below pre-COVID levels. Bishop Read said "With these growing clergy and lay ministry shortages in mind, I chose our theme, "Here Am I. Send me." I chose it to remind us that each one of us is called. Every person, in every pew, in every congregation, is called. Women and men; youth and children; middle aged and senior citizens; high school and college students - all are called."

Bishop Read expressed how the diocese would be offering a series of Discovery Weekends for individuals to explore lay and ordained vocations; the permanent diaconate; the bi-vocational priesthood; church planting; parish ministries; and the path to ordination. In addition, the Diocese of West Texas is partnering with the Iona Collaborative to significantly expand the Iona School in West Texas. Currently, the Iona School is geared toward persons studying for the bi-vocational priesthood.

To raise up new leaders in West Texas, he asked that all committees and commissions of the diocese look seriously at creating their own term limits, stating "If we are going to be serious about raising up new leaders in West Texas, we will need to be intentional about creating systems where people serve a maximum of two, 3-year terms, and then take a break after helping to train new members and new leaders."

During the address, he recalled the joyous celebration at the beginning of Council of church plant, St. Nicholas, Bulverde, becoming a mission and urging congregations to be part of bringing more church plants to the diocese. "We plant churches because the great commission is not 'the great suggestion.' Jesus' command to go and make disciples of all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son and of the Holy Spirit, is still his great expectation of us."

He shared his belief that “The diocesan level structure exists first and foremost to proclaim the good news of Jesus Christ. Second, the diocesan level structure exists to support the congregations and institutions in West Texas so that they thrive. And third, the diocesan level structure exists to do ministries that are best done at that level, or ministries that are best done together.” Bishop Read announced that a task force would be formed in the next 30 days to study the apportionment formula and bring back recommendations at next year’s Council. Bishop Read then shared that he believes it is time to significantly expand the endowments which support the ministry of Camps and Conferences. The ministries which take place at Camp Capers, Mustang Island Conference Center, and Duncan Park are life-transforming ministries which cannot be sustained solely relying on apportionment funds from congregations.

“For those ministries to continue to flourish for decades to come, their endowments need to be expanded. Now hear me out: I am not looking to fully endow our camps so that the diocesan budget and our congregations no longer play a vital role or no longer have “skin in the game.” We will always fund these ministries through the diocesan budget. But an endowment of $10 million would provide income to continue to support these ministries and the maintenance of these sites for our grandchildren and great-grandchildren in addition to helping us reduce apportionments across the diocese.”

Bishop Read applauded the good work being done in the Small Church Ministry. There are many exciting initiatives for small congregations that Canon Leyla King and diocesan staff have introduced to help small congregations thrive and grow.

He shared the reason for the recent closing of the Plaza de Paz Center, resulting from factors occurring over the past few years and how the Immigration and Refugee Ministries will continue to serve and do good work, adjusting and changing to meet the changing needs within the diocese. Stating that we are serving and doing ministry in strange and challenging times, he asked that we remember “There will always be times when government policies collide with or contrast with The Gospel of Jesus Christ. That’s not new. When the Church speaks out about it, that’s not politics. That’s being the Church – proclaiming the Gospel. Every one of us has vowed to respect the dignity of every human being” and that “there is no room for language that suggests all migrants are criminals, or lazy, or somehow sub-human. They are children of God. Citizens of God’s kingdom. Loved by Jesus their Lord. And we should have no tolerance in the Church for anything less than love.”

The conclusion of Bishop Read’s addresses included an expression of gratitude “I am the Bishop of West Texas” because I am proud of you. As I travel our diocese I see the work, and ministry, the generosity, the outreach and experimentation, the labors of love, and the challenges of our day. And I thank my God always for you. And I thank my God always for my wife, Jacqui.

He then implored the diocese to “Say bigger prayers.” Quoting Phillips Brooks, graduate of Virginia Theological Seminary and rector of Trinity Church in Boston who composed the words to the Christmas hymn, “O Little Town of Bethlehem, he shared “Pray bigger prayers.” “Don’t pray for crutches – pray for wings.” “There is not one prayer you or I can pray that Jesus doesn’t wish was bigger. Pray bigger prayers, for the Diocese of West Texas, pray bigger prayers for your congregation, and pray bigger prayers for yourself. Pray bigger prayers, and stand up to say, “Here am I. Send Me.”

COUNCIL 2025

SAN MARCOS, TX

THROUGH THE LENS:

Bishop Cortiñas' Consecration

By Lauren Vereen, St. Peter's Communication Coordinator

As a contracted photographer for the Diocese of West Texas, I have been present for some momentous occasions, and no one is as surprised as me that I have the privilege to be there. A few years ago, a St. Peter's parishioner, Cindy Bachman, connected me to the diocese when she asked me to film a virtual tour of the Bishop Jones Center for a presentation for the Episcopal Church Women. Neither of us knew then that this connection would change my life.

Since then, the diocese has invited me to photograph its most significant events, including Council, the consecration of Bishop Read, the election of Bishop Cortiñas, and most recently, Bishop Cortiñas' consecration in McAllen, Texas.

The morning after my long drive south to the Valley, my first event was photographing Presiding Bishop Sean Rowe's talk and luncheon with the clergy at St. Alban's in Harlingen. Making jokes and taking genuine interest in everyone he met, Bishop Rowe surprised me with his down-to-earth demeanor. It's not every day you meet the Presiding Bishop of the Episcopal Church, so I followed the lead of a few brave attendees and asked for a photo together. Although I'm not clergy, I enjoyed listening to his talk, while attempting to discreetly take photos. He spoke candidly about the difficult task of cutting staff just months after taking office to align with the previously adopted 2025-2026 budget. The timing was unfortunate, as the Episcopal Migration Ministries was suspended in January by executive order. Despite these setbacks, he encouraged embracing adaptive change, tackling declining Sunday attendance by experimenting boldly, and accepting failure as part of the process. He then spent as much time as possible answering questions before everyone shared a simple lunch together in the parish hall.

After a quiet hour back at my hotel room spent "culling" the photos I had taken so far, I traveled with the diocesan staff to the rehearsal for the consecration at St. John's Episcopal Church in McAllen. Getting a behind-the-scenes look at the preparation for such a large-scale event was fascinating. Angela had a strong showing of support from St. David's in Austin, with several members serving as readers and Eucharistic ministers. The sweetest moment was the arrival of Angela's daughter, Victoria, who watched her mom with pride during the rehearsal.

The celebratory atmosphere continued to the Museum of South Texas History in Edinburg. With much laughter and rejoicing, a delicious Mexican meal and the talents of a local mariachi band were enjoyed by all present. Angela's family had been delayed due to canceled flights caused by extreme winds, so their eventual arrival just in time for dinner was a highlight of the evening.

After being on my feet all day, I went straight to bed and set my alarm for 5:30 AM. By 7:00 AM, I was back at St. John's School to capture the signing and sealing of Angela's ordination certificate. I arrived just in time to catch the Presiding Bishop's signature - those bishops are fast! The Rev. Dr. Molly James has a clever, tried-and-true method for completing the task: a hot glue gun for the wax seal.

Once the bishops retreated to a classroom for their "top-secret" meeting with Angela, I made my way to the church to start photographing the moments leading up to the service. One of my favorite photos, though not a technical masterpiece, was of Angela and her daughter tucked away in the Rector's office, reviewing the service bulletin away from the chaos.

Then came my ultimate challenge: photographing the service unobtrusively while capturing its most important moments (all in dim lighting) and avoiding stepping into the live stream video. Fortunately, a perfectly placed pillar near the front provided the ideal spot to hover. Only a select few are able to be on the chancel during a bishop's consecration, and I never imagined I'd be one of them. The music was uplifting, the atmosphere was awe-inspiring, and when Bishop Angela Cortiñas was officially introduced, the joy was deafening.

Following the procession out, I quickly grabbed a photo of all the bishops together. In the minutes after, each bishop congratulated Angela and asked for her blessing. It was the kind of moment that gives you chills.

The crowd eventually made their way to the school for the reception. The cake was cut, and Angela could barely take a step without someone stopping her for a hug, congratulations, or a selfie. Her family's smiles were contagious, and seeing her reconnect with the large group from St. David's Austin who had made the long journey to witness her consecration was heartwarming.

As attendees trickled out to make their way home, I sat down with Meg and Andrea from the diocesan communications office to send them a few pictures for their announcements and social media. Weeding through the photos is my least favorite part of the job, as I had over a thousand to review! Then, it was time to pack up and head home to Kerrville. After a morning on my feet, I didn't mind the 4.5-hour drive.

As I left the Valley, palm trees and fields slowly fading into the rolling hills of the Hill Country, I was overwhelmed with gratitude for being part of such a momentous occasion and for playing even a small role in the work of our incredible diocese. I look forward, like the rest of you, to welcoming Bishop Angela Cortiñas at St. Peter's for our Lenten Series on April 2, 2025.

A Letter from the Brotherhood of St. Andrew

What does it mean to be part of a brotherhood? For the men of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew at St. Peter's, it means coming together in prayer, study, and service. As Wynn Kilgore put it, "The Holy Spirit is always here." The group meets twice a month, offering a space for open discussion, deep connection, and friendship. "We have great discussions," said Donald Glover. "We can disagree and no one gets mad." Their time together is built on trust and respect. "What we say here we don't share, it stays here," said James Horne.

Beyond study and conversation, this is a group that prays together and supports one another. "We pray for individuals and different issues they may be dealing with," Glover shared. And while each man may have different views on the world, one thing remains constant - their bond. "We all have different political leanings and it has no effect on our connection with one another," Glover said. "We come together to share thoughts and understandings of Christ, but we all like each other, too. We're close," added Kilgore.

If you're searching for a place to grow in faith and fellowship, the Brotherhood of St. Andrew invites you to learn more. Below, Donald Glover shares what this group is all about.

Dear Brothers,

Are you yearning for connection and purpose in your spiritual journey? Do you sometimes feel your service to God lacks vitality? If you're searching for love and belonging in places that don't quite fulfill you, we have an extraordinary community!

At Saint Peter's Episcopal Church, a welcoming group —a Chapter of the International Brotherhood of Saint Andrew. This remarkable organization, founded on November 30, 1883, at Saint James Episcopal Church in Chicago, has blossomed into a global community dedicated to prayer, study, and service.

Join us twice a month at the Library, Saint Peter's Episcopal Church, Kerrville, at 1 pm on the first and third Tuesday. We participate in the hamburgers ministry, the pancake dinner, soup Wednesdays, and are open to service projects that have nothing to do with food. You can be part of this vibrant fellowship. Engage in enriching Bible Study and lively debates, where your voice and perspective are truly valued.

All men of the church are welcomed with open arms. Come and experience the warmth and camaraderie of our group. We believe it could be the perfect fit for you.

With gratitude,
Donald Glover

ACOUSTIC SET FOLLOWS

THE TRAILHEAD BEER GARDEN @ 6PM

When there is a 5th Wednesday of the month, we take a break from our regular Wednesday night programming and meet off campus.

For our upcoming 5th Wednesday musician Hayes Duffy, the grandson of Kay and Jim Hayes, will be playing at The Trailhead Beer Garden.

HAYES DUFFY

Hayes was born and raised in Harlingen, where he was baptized and became an active member of St. Alban's Church and Day School. He began playing guitar when he was about 10 years old, and joined the parish's praise band and helped lead music at around 13.

Hayes says, "I was inspired by the music directors at Camp Capers, and decided I wanted to do that someday. When I was in high school, I attended the Bishop's Happening Movement, a youth outreach weekend led by students, and fell in love with the role that music played in the development of faith in the youth."

Hayes volunteered as music leader for Happening Weekends whenever possible, which strengthened his love for music and worship.

Following graduation from high school, Hayes attended Texas A&M, earning a Bachelor in Political Science and a Master of Real Estate Finance. He also found time to continue making music, saying, "I formed a country band called The Estate Sale, playing bars and tailgates and small music venues around central Texas."

Hayes currently works in banking in San Antonio, making music with and for friends as he is able. In his free time, he loves to play and write country/Americana music, hang out with his 2-year-old yellow lab, Basil, and play golf.

I Believe

An Adult Christian Formation Class Exploring the Apostles' Creed

What do we believe as Christians?

What are the most important elements of the faith?

For centuries, Christians have affirmed certain truths in the words of creeds, the Apostles' Creed being one of the most important.

Over the course of six weeks, Fr. Bert and Fr. Mike will teach a class on the Apostles' Creed and invite you to explore the deeper meaning of our Christian faith. We invite you to join us in the class as we dig into the Creed, so we can find life whenever we say, "I believe..."

The class meets on Sundays at 10:30 am in the MPR, through April 6th.

TUCKER HALL 5:00-7:00 PM

COME AND SEE

Encountering Christ in His Church

Fr. Mike has begun an ongoing series of adult classes aimed to "put people in communication with Jesus Christ." The series will be a reasonably full course that will reveal the joy and the demands of the way of Christ. Each class will be experienced as a kind of 'catechesis'--religious instruction designed to offer a broad outline of our faith and with the hopeful effect of deepening our Christian discipleship. The course can be experienced class-by-class or as a whole series, and is intended to be receptive to neophytes all the way to lifelong believers. Curious souls who wish to both listen and participate in their own fashion are welcomed to attend. "Come and see," the Apostle Andrew said to his brother St. Peter, when he wished to introduce him to Jesus. Indeed!

WEDNESDAYS AT 6:15 PM in the MPR

This class will break for the Lenten Series and returns April 23rd.
